

Mika Yamaguchi
Senior Lector of Japanese
East Asian Languages and Literatures
Yale University

Mika Yamaguchi currently teaches Japanese and serves as the Japanese program coordinator at Yale University. She has extensive teaching experience at various institutions including Michigan State University and Emory University in Atlanta, Georgia. Her research interests include Japanese pedagogy, second language acquisition, and integrating technologies in language learning. She has been teaching the summer intensive Japanese courses at Sophia University since 2015. She received Ph.D. in Japanese language education from Konkuk University in South Korea and M.B.A. from University of Georgia.