

Collin Rusneac

Adjunct Professor, Department of Liberal Arts, Faculty of Liberal Arts, Sophia University

Collin is a doctoral candidate in a dual-PhD program between Heidelberg University in Germany and Tohoku University in Sendai, Japan. Prior to starting his PhD, he received his masters' degree from Sophia University. His interests and fields of research include Japanese history, global history and memory studies. For his doctoral project he investigates Japanese cemeteries and monuments for the war-dead built inside of Japan and around the world.

Publications:

(2023) "Overcoming Trauma at Chidorigafuchi: Japan's 'National Cemetery' and the Legacies of the Asia-Pacific War." In Burrett, Tina and Kingston, Jeff (eds.) Routledge Handbook of Trauma in East Asia. Abingdon: Routledge. (Co-written with Saaler, Sven).

(2022) “Japanese War Cemeteries and What They Teach Us About History.” In Wigger, Lothar and Dirnberger, Marie (eds.). Remembrance – Responsibility – Reconciliation: Challenges for Education in Germany and Japan. Berlin: J.B. Metzler. 109-124.

(2022) “Building Transnational Memories at Japanese War and Colonial Cemeteries.” The Asia-Pacific Journal: Japan Focus, Vol. 20, Issue 10, No. 2, 15 May. Available online: <https://apjjf.org/2022/10/Rusneac.html>

(2018) Translation (Japanese to English) of ““Education and Patriotism” (Kyōiku to aikoku). A Documentary.” Friedrich Ebert Stiftung Japan, online publication: <https://www.fes-japan.org/news-list/e/education-and-patriotism-a-documentary/>.